

April 14, 2026

To: Aaron Stein-Sapir

From: Peter Bodonyi

Re: CURE Process Overview

Aaron:

Provided for your review is what I would consider a moderately deep dive into CURE's process. I like to use the phrase "how the sausage is made."

I have attached three separate output "reports" that detail how CURE, our Avatar version of a human title examiner, completes an exam, culminating in the title company's creation of the final client- and lender-facing Ownership and Encumbrance report.

STEP 1: RAW ABSTRACT – NOTES

Purposely shaded with a yellow background to mimic an abstractor's legal pad; the Raw Abstract represents the initial collection of the identified matters of record that affect (or may affect) our subject property and borrowers.

CURE will then complete its Title Exam.

STEP 2: TITLE EXAM

Much like the human abstractor, once the initial matters of record are identified, CURE will examine and "clear" records that are not party to our transaction and or grade those items that may require human intervention by the client's title or escrow department to obtain, for example, a payoff to clear a cloud on title.

Traditionally, this is where the independent thumb searcher working at the courthouse ends their process, requiring the title department to review and complete the final O&E report for delivery to their lender client.

STEP 3: GENERATION OF OWNERSHIP AND ENCUMBRANCE REPORT (O&E)

CURE automatically generates the final Ownership and Encumbrance Report.

Deliverables include:

- PDF O&E Report
- All supporting documents (PDF)
- Payload
 - XML (w pdf)
 - JSON
- Whitelist/Private Label